THAT BEAN ESTATE.

A Probability That it Will Fall Into the Hands of the State of Texas.

Mention has been made once or twice by the BULLETIN of the Bean estate in Texas. There is a family of that name in this county and it was reported for a while that they stood some chance of receiving a part of the property. The following, however, indicates that their chances are rather slim. A special from Austin, Texas, says there is a report current there that a proposition has been made the Texas State authorities relative to the celebrated Bean estate of Fannin County, which has been figuring extensively in the papers for several months. Bean died in Fannin County some time ago, leaving property valued all the way from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, and so far as known he has left no heirs. After the announcement of his death, however, several claimants turned up in different parts of the country and all are vigorously pressing their claims, with the chance so far decidedly in favor of Postmaster H. P. Howard, of San Antonio, represented by Attorney W. M. Walton, of Austin, at a fee of $50,000. But the proposition alleged to have been made the State, if accepted and proven up, will blast the hopes of all clamoring heirs, for it purports to show beyond all doubt that Bean was the last of his kindred, and that in all the earth he has no blood relations whatever, even to the remotest degree. If this can be shown, and it is positively affirmed that it can be, of course this vast estate will be escheated and fall to the State of Texas. It is understood that the matter is to be thoroughly investigated and further developments in the mysterious case, which is destined to be one of most remarkable on record, will be watched for with interest.

KENTUCKY CENTRAL SUITS.

There Will Not be Much Left After Bliss & Gates, of New York, Get Their Claim.

The Covington correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer says: "The following intervening petitions have been filed in the United States Court in the case of Bliss & Gates, of New York, against the Kentucky Central Railroad. After Bliss & Gates get their few millions out there will be little left, however, for distribution. The claims in the intervening petitions are as follows: C. P. Huntington, $60,552 for money loaned; Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, $20,000 for money loaned; Contracting and Building Company, $8,000 for material; L. D. Renaker, $75 for cattle killed; Louisa Stevens, $900 for injuries to her husband; Narcissa Walker, $900 for injuries to her husband; Hume Desha, $2,700 for injuries sustained on the road; G. W. Gasteneson, $2,700 for the killing of Robert Gasteneson; John W. Stevenson, $7,500 for legal services; Lewis Mulford, $1,000 for injuries sustained; Isaac Ackley, $6,500 for injuries sustained; Florence McMichael, $5,000; Keith & Wilson want the stock yards; Kenton County wants her taxes due; A. G. Drury, $1,700 for a lot; Keystone Bridge Company, $56,910; Norton, Bliss & Co., $1,364 for borrowed money; Louisville Bridge and Iron Company, $5,525.45; W. H. Dawson, $4,500 for injuries sustained; J. D. Hughes, $16,005 for the killing of T. J. Nichols; L. Cunningham, $1,200 for the killing of a jackass; W. C. Threlkeld, $525 for the killing of a horse; Carnegie Bros. & Co., of New York, want $218,595.12 for iron. There are yet several precincts to hear from."

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

Postmasters Should Charge a Cent for Each One Delivered.

A special from Washington says the Superintendent of the Dead Letter Office has prepared a circular which will be sent to all postmasters directing the strict enforcement of section 59 of the postal laws and regulations. This section makes it imperative upon postmasters to advertise in a newspaper a manuscript list of non-delivered letters. It also "requires" the charge and collection of one cent in all cases where a letter has been published whether the list has been published in a newspaper either gratuitously or at one cent for each letter or less sum, or whether the publication was merely by a written list posted in some public place. In all cases the postmaster must affix and cancel a 1-cent postage due stamp as evidence of its delivery. In postoffices other than those of the free delivery class the postage due stamp should not be affixed until the delivery of the letter. This clause of the postal law has not heretofore been strictly enforced. It is estimated that the postal revenues will be increased largely by the strict enforcement of this law.

STEVENS and Miss Sarah Clark, both of this county, were granted marriage license this morning, and were married shortly afterwards by Elder Richard Ricketts at his residence on Front street. It is the groom's second matrimonial venture. He is sixty-one years of age, and his bride forty-one.

A YOUNG lady who had been married a little over a year wrote to her matter-of-fact old father in Greenville, Texas, saying: "We have the dearest little cottage in the world, ornamented with the most charming creepers you ever saw." The old man read the letter, and jumping to the conclusion, exclaimed: "Twins, by thunder."—Exchange.

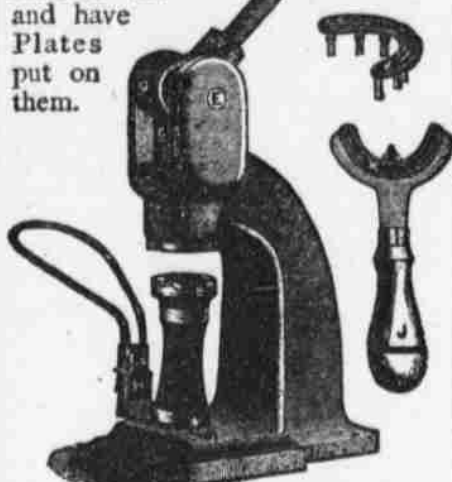

AN exchange remarks: "Writing for the paper is like giving away your clothes—you can't suit everybody. A short man will get a long pair of breeches, and a solemn man will get a funny paragraph. May be a thick man will get a slim shirt, and may be a fool will read what was written for a wise man; perhaps the shortest coat will go to the man who has none but patched pants."

THE City Council of Paris has passed an ordinance taxing all peddlers ten dollars, and all life and fire insurance companies five dollars each per annum for the privilege of doing business in the city. During the first three months of the present year he has paid off a debt of $500 that he found on one of the churches. The circuit has prospered in every other way.
